WALLACE - GALLOWAY PARK & TRAIL RULES

1. Park and trail are open to the public during daylight hours only.
2. Respect wildlife and other visitors and share the park and trail.
3. No motorized vehicles are permitted.
4. Leave the park and trail better than the way you find it.
5. Use park and trail at your own risk. In case of emergency 911.
6. Dispose of trash in a trash receptacle or take it with you.
7. Trail markers are located on guideposts and trees.
8. Always keep pets on a leash and under control and clean up after them.
9. Photography and videography are always welcome and free of charge unless they require a pavilion or park reservation.
10. Hill College reserves the right to close the park or ask guests to exit at any time for any reason.

PAVILION USAGE GUIDELINES

1. Reserving the pavilion or hosting an event that renders some or all the park unavailable to others requires advance registration and fee payment.
2. In the absence of a reservation and payment, use of the pavilion, fire pit, and grill is first-come, first-served.
3. Only the grill may be used during fire bans, not the fireplace and fire pit.
4. Dispose of trash in a trash receptacle or take it with you.
5. Turn off pavilion fans and lights after use.
6. Do not place hot coals and embers in the trash. Leave fireplace and grill hot coals and embers in those fixtures.

WALLACE GALLOWAY ★ PARK ★

Wallace-Galloway Park was born in 2019 from a shared vision: to preserve the natural beauty of Hill College's Hillsboro campus while creating a place where students, employees, and the community can connect with nature, wellness, and one another.

The story began in the late 1990s, when Jerry Norton Wallace donated 53 acres to Hill College. A lover of nature and wooded trails, Mr. Wallace's generosity helped lay the foundation for what would eventually become Wallace-Galloway Park named for Mr. Wallace and his sweetheart and companion, Janice Galloway.

In October 2022, Dr. Tom Mills began creating a new vision for the park that included the expansion of the acreage of the park and the addition of a walking trail. With the support of the Hill College Foundation, Wallace-Galloway Park has grown to almost 84 acres and includes the Wallace-Galloway Trail. The approximately four-mile trail winds through wooded areas, open prairies, campus grounds, and creeks with engineered bridges allowing visitors to cross streams along the way. Recently planted trees lining the prairie portions of the trail will someday provide shade while enhancing its natural beauty.

More than a trail, Wallace-Galloway Park is envisioned as a destination for wellness, recreation, education and community. The park provides a place for walking and hiking, outdoor classroom and laboratory experiences, and cross-country training and competition.

What began with one man's love of the outdoors continues today as a lasting gift to Hill College and the community — a place where people can walk, learn, compete, celebrate, and enjoy the beauty of nature.
